

Dr Duncan Wong is the CEO of CryptoBLK, which specializes in building Blockchain technologies with track records including Blockchain-based systems for trade finance and insurance, Central Bank Digital Currency (CBDC), smart contracts for utility and security tokens, DeFi systems, and quantum-resistant privacy-preserving cryptocurrency, Abelian (abelian.info).

Before founding CryptoBLK, Dr Wong was in charge of the Financial Technologies (FinTech) Initiative of the largest R&D Center in Hong Kong, the Hong Kong Applied Science and Technology Research Institute (ASTRI). The FinTech Initiative was focused on Cybersecurity, Blockchain, Artificial Intelligence, Big Data Analytics, and Machine Learning.

Dr Wong has also been a professor at the Chinese University of Hong Kong, then the City University of Hong Kong for 13 years, and tenured in the Department of Computer Science at City University of Hong Kong. Dr Wong has authored over 200 research papers in Cryptography and Information Security, and has served as a member including the chair of the program committees for over 100 international conferences in cryptography and information security.